Day 2

After breakfast you will pick up your equipment and have a safety briefing before driving a snowmobile and practice your skills in a training session.

Your itinerary will start with a ride on snow-covered forest trails. Then, you will pass frozen Sandal Lake and reach the Lychny Island. Here, the wooden church of Peter and Paul is located. This is the oldest church in Karelia — it was built in 1620. During a break, you will drink hot tea and taste cranberries in sugar.

Next point of the route will be Mount Belaya ("White" in Russian). More than a hundred years ago, Tivdia marble was mined here. It was used for the construction of buildings in St. Petersburg. Here, you will also see a marble church of the 19th century — it was designed by the architect of the Moscow Cathedral of Christ the Savior, Konstantin Ton.

You will have lunch at a cozy cafe near the river. Here, you will taste 7 types of vendace (northern fish). Also, the owner of the base will teach you how to fry red fish on a stone.

On the way back, you will pass through several ancient villages. They are called "asleep" because life here has almost stopped. In Oyazha village only one residential house remained. Near Ershi village you will see an old chapel.

In the evening, you will return to the touristic complex, have dinner and relax in a bathhouse.

Day 3

Today, snowmobiles will take you to the ancient volcano

Girvas, which is located in the riverbed of the Suna river. It was opened only in the 70s, when Palyeozerskaya hydroelectric power station was built. Here you will also visit a trout farm.

Next you will get to the landing strip of an abandoned airfield. During the World war II, this territory was occupied by the Finns. Then you will get to the Poor-Porog location, where you will admire the ancient rocks; their age is several million years. In this place, a new version of the famous soviet film "The dawns here are quiet" was shot.

Here you will also have a winter picnic: for lunch, you will taste smoked fish with cranberry sauce, hot tea and cloudberry jam. Then you will return to the base by snowmobiles. From here, you will take the bus to Petrozavodsk. After dinner at the restaurant, you will return home on one of the evening trains.

The length of the route is 50 km on snowmobiles.
