

Stone people of Sundurun

Hiking expedition in Yakutia

We invite you to join our expedition to one of the most unexplored and hard-to-reach corners of Yakutia — to the Sundurun River Valley. Here unique stone pillars of sandstone and quartz stand right in the middle of the subarctic tundra. The Even people called these giants, as high as a 10-story building, "The Stone People of Sundurun". They remind of one of the seven wonders of Russia — the famous stone pillars on the Manpupuner plateau. However, there are not only 7 of them, but several hundreds, scattered on the territory of about 100 square kilometers!

Experiences you'll have

Trekking to the Sundurun river rocks

The Sundurun River Valley in Yakutia is a real "terra incognita". The first photos of the Sundurun Stone People were made by biologist and photographer Alexander Dersu during his aerial expedition to count reindeer in the Yakut tundra in 2012. Since then, this place attracts the most sophisticated travelers and lovers of unconventional routes. However, it is not easy to get here: complete remoteness from civilization and the influence of the East Siberian Sea tides complicate the logistics.

You have to cover 400 kilometers by small vessels along the northern rivers Indigirka, Sundurun and Kolyma Bay of East Siberian sea and pass over 40 kilometers on foot along the tundra. You will be accompanied by experienced instructors and local guides who will show you the main natural treasures of Sundurun Valley.

:Highlights of the expedition:

you will get acquainted with the wild world of the Yakut tundra — there is a great chance to meet polar and brown bears, reindeer and Arctic foxes on the route visit a small island in the East Siberian Sea, where rare birds are nesting, such as white crane or Siberian crane, which are included in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature feel like a real paleontologist — in the Sundurun river valley you can find the remains of prehistoric animals: mammoths, cave bears and etc.
see the "Stanchik" church — the monument wooden architecture related to XVIII century, as well as the northernmost church in the world
if desired you can also visit the ancient village of Russkoye Ustye (Rus. for Russian River's Mouth), where you will get acquainted with the everyday life and traditions of the Cossacks

Then you travel a further 170 km along the Sundurun

River to get to the first base camp. During the river crossing you will see ancient yurts and abandoned fishermen's plots along the shore. You will spend the nights in tents these days.

The length of the route is 400 km by boat (9 hours during the first day, 5 hours during the second day).

Day 3

These days will be used as the reserve days in case of low water level in the rivers. At low tide there are long shoals in these areas that make it difficult for boats to navigate.

If the waterborne trip to the first camp was successful on the previous days, these days you will have additional walks to the Sundurun stone pillars. In case the boat cannot reach the first base camp by water, you will have to hike about 11 km with the backpacks.

Day 4

On these days you will explore the unique landscapes of the Beyl Urukchen Sundurun. The name translates from the Even language as "Stone People of Sundurun". They are unique rock outcrops of sandstone and shale up to 30 m high, scattered in the middle of the tundra on the territory of about 100 sq. km. The rocks have a variety of forms: some of them resemble figures of people and animals, others resemble stone castles and intricate structures.

The Sundurun River Valley in Yakutia is a real "terra incognita". During this expedition you can feel yourself not only a discoverer, but also a paleontologist. The remains of mammoths and cave bears are preserved here in the depths of subarctic tundra.

On day 6 you will make a radial hiking route from the first base camp to the nearest rocks. On day 7 you will hike with backpacks to the second base camp, located at the foot of the far rocks (11 km on foot with backpacks with equipment and personal belongings). On days 8-12, you will explore the surrounding area and do lightweight excursions to the far rocks of the Sundurun River (20-30 km on foot). On day 13 you will return on foot to the first base camp on the riverbank.

The length of the route is 22 km on foot with backpacks

(personal belongings + equipment) and 20-30 km on foot without backpacks.

Day 5

These days you will have a return trip by boat to Chokurdakh village. Upon arrival you will be accommodated in the guest house and have a rest. You will be able to visit a bathhouse (sauna) if you would like.

In case the water transfer takes place as planned in these days you will have free time in Chokurdakh village. You may go on an excursion to the Russkoe Ustye settlement (paid extra). The first mentions of it date back to 1638: at that time a Cossack detachment led by Tobolsk Cossack Ivan Rebrov opened a sea route across the Indiga River and built two fortresses in the lower reaches of the river. For a long time the settlement was isolated from the outside world. Thanks to this, the locals managed to preserve the traditional lifestyle and culture of the first Cossacks.

Day 6

This day you will have free time in Chokurdakh village. In the evening we will take you to the airport from where you will depart to Yakutsk at 6:45 pm by local airline (flight tickets are paid additionally).

Upon arrival in the city (about 10 pm) you will be met and taken to the hotel, which you should book by yourself.

Day 7

On this day you will depart from your hotel on your own to the Yakutsk airport.
