Trip to Yamal in winter

Yamal tundra means endless snowy space, strong winds and harsh frost. The life in such harsh conditions completely differs from benefits of civilization that we are used to. But if you are not afraid of difficulties and lack of the usual comfort, then this journey to reindeer herders' camp beyond the Arctic circle will give you completely new experience.

Experiences you'll have

Watching the Northerh lights at Yamal

This expedition to the far lands beyond the Arctic circle will give you a unique chance to get acquainted with the indigenous peoples of the Far North of Russia. You will stay at the hunting base far from civilization and travel across the snowy tundra. In good weather you will admire the Northern lights. Here, in Yamal this natural phenomenon is characterized by bright iridescences of different colors and mesmerizing flickering.

During the day you will be immersed in the culture and life of the indigenous peoples of the Far North. In the evenings you will try to capture the stunning Northern lights above the vast expanses of the tundra.

During this tour you will:

- learn how to assemble a chum and find out about different types of reindeer sleds
- watch how to work with the herd
- take a ride on a reindeer sled
- spend one night in a real chum — the traditional rawhide tent of nomadic reindeer herders
- taste the traditional cuisine of the indigenous peoples of the Far North
- visit the Khanty family in the national village of Yambura
